SIGHT OF WHITE MADE THAW WILD

Evelyn Says He Showed Signs of Insanity When He Saw Architect.

HER TESTIMONY IS ALL IN

New York, Feb. 27 .- Mrs. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw's long ordeal upon the witness stand at the trial of her hushand for the killing of Stanford White is ended. Mr. Jerome finished his cross-*xamination, which had lasted through searly five court days. The re-direct and re-cross examinations were of the briefest character, and just prior to adjournment it was announced that the defendant's wife had been finally excused. The district attorney will begin his cross-examination of Dr. Britton D. Evans, one of the alienists for the defense. He will follow this up by cross-examining Dr. Charles G. Wagner, and then Drs. Deemar and Bingaman will be called in rapid order. The trial at last seems to be entering upon its final stages.

The completion of Mrs. Thaw's examination followed the unsuccessful effort of the prosecution to draw from Abraham Hummel certain facts relating to the affidavit which Mrs. Thaw is said to have made in Hummel's law office. In this affidavit it is declared there was an allegation that Thaw had beaten the girl while abroad in 1903 when she told him there was no truth in the story about her relations with Stanford White.

Mr. Delmas, for the defense, blocked practically every question put to Hummel. The witness got no farther than to say he knew Mrs. Thaw, that she came to his office October 27, 1903, and that he dictated to a stenographer while she was there. Justice Fitzger ald held that under the rules of evidence covering Mrs. Thaw's testimony the introduction of colateral facts was not permissible. The district attorney is not allowed to controvert her tes timony in any way, but may test her credibility. Mr. Jerome said in open court that he realized that even if he could show that Stanford White was in Europe the night Mrs. Thaw declares she was assaulted by him, he would not be allowed to introduce such testimony. It was reported that Mr. Jerome has much testimony to offer in rebuttal, but as it is nearly all of a collateral character, he will not be allowed to place it before the jury.

Mrs. Thaw was given the opporfunity to clear up the odds and ends of evidence her school girl diary and stroyed. read certain extracts from it. They caused many smiles in the court room, reflecting as they did the young woman's views of life during that period. ever used a penny of the letter of quite severely. credit Stanford White gave to her under scal before she went to Europe with Thaw and her mother. She denied that she had ever been mentioned in any way in connection with the James A. Garland divorce case. She said Stanford White paid all her brother's and checks signed by her mother, showing that the latter drew more than $3000 from Stanford White's funds May, 1903. Evelyn was at school during most of this time.

Mr. Jerome asked Mrs. Harry Thaw if she bad observed instances of unsound mind in her husband's conduct.

The question was a broad one, for he had asked of specific instances time and again in the cross-examination, but Mrs. Thaw was ready and

"To what particular time do you

"Well, after your marriage and prior to the shooting of Stanford White,' specified Mr. Jerome.

"He was most erratic in Pittsburg in 1906," said Mrs. Thaw, "but I remember one night we were going home in a cab, on Broadway, near Herald Square, when he saw Stanford White. "I don't know what you call it; I call ft a fit; he had a fit right there in the cab. He cried and sobbed and bit his hands. His body trembled and he behaved funny."

Instead of further hurting the cause of her husband, Mrs. Thaw managed to make two decided gains. When court adjourned last Thursday it appeared from her own statements that she had used a letter of credit from Stanford White while touring in Europe, and had turned the letter over to Thaw. She explained that Thaw took the letter of credit from her, saying, the money was "poisonous," and neither she nor her mother would touch it. and that he would provide them witz funds. Whatever had been sepnt of the money, she declared was for her

The second point Mrs. Thaw made was concerning the cablegrams which Thaw is said to have sent to Stanford White from London. It appeared Thursday that these cablegrams were requests to White to use his influence in keeping Mrs. Nesbit from "raising a row" and interfering with Evelyn continuing in company with Thaw. Mr. Jerome took up the subject again, but his questions elicited the information that the letters did not concern Mrs. Thaw at all, but related to a man -a secretary of the American embay suy-in London, whom Mrs. Thaw said had "sneaked up to mamma's bedroom and insulted her." She said the man had also insulted her, and that Thaw had gone in search of him, but fatied

The route taken was over the old post line, and lay, for most part, through a lonesome and almost interminable pine forest, for which this section of Alabama was then noted. The country through which the march was made was rich, indeed, in stately the following manner: The Fortypine trees, but still was the poorest part of the state, from the fact that it was only slightly cultivated in places few and far between, very sparsely inhabited by occasional "poor whites," and seemed but one vast, almost unbroken pinery and solitude for the distance of more than 100 miles after leaving Blakely. The weather was het, the roads were rough and dusty, and many of the men were afflicted with sore feet before arriving at the journey's end. It was reported, at first, that the troops would pass through Selma, Ala., and headquarters and offered it to the as the regiments were toiling along one day some waggish soldier had placed a sign on a tree where all could easily read it the following notice: "To Selma, 150 miles, sore feet pleased the aged matron exceedingly. During the march through the pine forest section of lawer Alabama, some of the comrades of the Ninety-fifth Illinois decided that in the absence of articles of forage usually found along the route of such expeditions, they would partake of a rare bit of food which came into their possession in fourth Missouri, after getting into camp one evening, had slain a huge rattlesnake, which measured full six feet in length and whose tail contained a dozen rattles. It was a monstrous reptile of the kind, fat, sleek and venomous, its appearance fully demonstrating that if human beings could not find enough in that wilderness to grow fat on, rattlesnakes could. Later in the evening some of these comrades brought a piece of their cooked rattlesnake up to regimental colonel and staff, but we thanked the boys for their kindness, assured them we had already eaten, to the full, our evening meal of common "army rations," and that we did not care to indulge in their kindly-proffered dish,
